Methodology

This week, we surveyed Canadians on politics, government performance, and key national issues.

Method

Online survey among respondents 18 years of age or older.
(Canadian sample: n= 1,592)

Respondents had the option of completing the survey in French and English and were randomly recruited using LEO's online panel.

Weighting

Results were weighted according to age, gender, mother tongue, region, education and presence of children in the household in order to ensure a representative sample of the Canadian population.

When

Data collection from September 5 to 7, 2025.

Margin of error

For comparison purposes, a probability sample of this size yields a margin of error no greater than ±2.5%, (19 times out of 20) for the sample.

Significant differences

Data in bold red characters indicate a significantly lower proportion than that of other respondents. Conversely, data in bold green characters indicate a significantly higher proportion than that of other respondents.

Rounded data

The numbers presented have been rounded up. However, the numbers before rounding were used to calculate the sums presented and might therefore not correspond to the manual addition of these numbers.

Key Highlights (1/2)

Some of the key highlights of our survey...

Federal Politics

- The Liberal Party, led by Mark Carney, continues to hold the lead in federal voting intentions with 47% support among decided voters, compared to 38% for the Conservatives.
- Satisfaction with the Carney government stands at 51%, a strong showing that still represents a slight drop since the last measurement. Notably, the share of Canadians who say they are very dissatisfied with the government has increased by three points, reaching 21% in September. Similarly, the Carney government's approval rate also declined slightly, from 56% in August to 53% in September.

Projects of National Interest

- Half of Canadians (47%) report being familiar with Prime Minister Carney's major projects initiative, while a slight majority (53%) are not. Familiarity is higher among Albertans (58%), Ontarians (50%), and Liberal voters (55%).
- Nearly half of Canadians (46%) believe that new oil and natural gas pipelines are the major project most likely to have the greatest impact on Canada's economy. This is followed, at a lower level, by the expansion and interconnection of Canada's electricity grid (21%) and new liquefied natural gas facilities (15%). Support for new pipelines is strongest among Albertans (63%) and Conservative voters (60%).
- Three in four Canadians (72%) believe that once these projects are identified, the government should move forward more quickly than usual with 39% saying much quicker, and 33% saying somewhat quicker.
- Overall, 42% of Canadians think Mark Carney is doing a good job in getting the Projects of National Interest initiative underway, while 31% think he is doing a poor job. More than a quarter (27%) remain unsure.

Key Highlights (2/2)

Some of the key highlights of our survey...

Public Safety

- Canadians are divided in their sense of safety: 51% say they are worried about general safety in their neighbourhood, while nearly as many (49%) are not. Canadians living in rural areas are more likely to say they are not worried (60%). Over 50% of urban and suburban Canadians worry at least sometimes about being safe in their neighbourhoods.
- A vast majority of Canadians (87%) believe that citizens have the right to defend themselves with reasonable force if an intruder breaks into their home.
- More than half of Canadians (54%) feel that the justice system is working against the interests of citizens, while 29% believe it protects those interests, and 17% are unsure. Ontarians (59%) and homeowners (56%) are particularly likely to think the justice system works against citizens.
